BOY, 22, ADMITS PLOT AGAINST MAYOR'S FAMILY

BUFFALO, N. Y., Jan. 18—Federal agents reported today they had obtained complete confessions from a 22 year old iron worker and the two sisters he is charged with forcing to join him in an attempt to extort $1500 from Mayor Thomas K. Holling on a threat of defacing his wife and daughter with acid.

The youth, Boguslaus Grzybowsky, made a tearful plea of innocence upon arraignment before U. S. Commissioner Boyce H. Butterfield. He was held in $10,000 bail for a further hearing. Bail of $1,000 each as material witnesses were fixed for the sisters, Salomea, 21, and Adeline, 14.

The three were trapped by F. B. I. agents when one of the girls attempted to retrieve a dummy package left in the cellar of a designated building by a policeman dressed as a woman. One of the girls said she wrote the letter at the insistence of her brother, according to G-men.

Bowman, Bandit, Escapes Prison

Brother Of Electrocuted Killer Flees Ohio Penitentiary; Reign Of Terror In Southern Ohio Recalled

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—All Ohio peace officers were engaged in a state-wide search today for Howard Bowman, 28 year old Brown county bank robber who escaped from the penitentiary where he was serving a life term.

Warden J. G. Woodard said he believed Bowman escaped in one of the half-dozen supply trucks which left the prison yard yesterday with groceries and equipment for other state institutions after a search of the prison failed to reveal the robber.

Bowman, who was committed to the penitentiary June 25, 1931 with his brother, Neal, to serve a life term for robbing banks at Higginsport and Russellville in Brown county, was described by Woodard as a model prisoner. He had been working in the prison kitchen.

The two brothers in their heyday, terrorized southern Ohio and northern Kentucky with their "wildwest" tactics. Often they rode into town shooting pistols and after completing a robbery, fled with officers in hot pursuit.

Neal obtained a transfer to Lima state hospital and escaped shortly afterward. He began a reign of terror which kept police of Ohio and Kentucky busy for three months. He finally was captured and electrocuted in Kentucky for shooting a 19 year old youth and throwing his body into Harrington lake in that state.

CITY'S SCHOOLS TO APPROPRIATE $96,000 FOR '39

Appropriations from the general fund for 1939 were made Tuesday night by the Circleville board of education.

Clarence Barnhart, clerk of the board, said the appropriations amounted to $96,000, practically the same as appropriated for 1938. The board of education had a balance of $11,985 on Jan. 1, 1939, about the same amount as carried into 1938 from 1937.

Total expenditures for 1938 amounted to $98,434.74, including $85,264.74 for operating expenses and $13,170 for bonds and interest.

New textbooks were adopted for courses in commercial law and occupations. Occupations is a new subject for sophomores with classes starting Jan. 30. Miss Rosemary Jackson will be instructor.

The board took under consideration the recommendations of a joint committee of board members and teachers for expenditure of the $500 received from the William Hulse estate. It is probable the fund will be used for reference books for the schools.

RED CROSS DRIVE ONLY 73 SHORT OF 1,000 GOAL

Pickaway county lacked 73 memberships in meeting its quota of 1,000 in the 1938 Red Cross roll call.

Complete report of the roll call was announced Wednesday by Earl A. Smith, chairman of the drive. Memberships totalled 927 with receipts amounting to $1,147.37. The national chapter receives $467.39, Mr. Smith reported.

Contributions from the city schools amounted to $36.10, and the county schools, $69.36. Those for other districts were Circleville $459.95, Darby township, $2, Deercreek township $100, Harrison township $62.50, Jackson township $2, Madison township $53.11, Darbyville $1, Perry township $90.25, Pickaway township $7.50, Saltcreek township $60.85, Orient institution $130.75, Walnut township $41, Washington township $6, Wayne township $25, and Monroe township $7.

The drive was conducted in November but some districts were late in reporting.

RAIN OR SNOW PREDICTED

More rain or snow was forecast for Thursday with probably colder weather. Precipitation in the 24 hours previous to 8 a. m. Wednesday amounted to only .12 of an inch. Snow Wednesday melted as rapidly as it fell. Highways throughout the county were clear. Tuesday's highest temperature was 40 degrees. During the night the mercury dropped to 32 degrees.

GOEBBELS BACK AT DESK AFTER "RECUPERATING"

LONDON, Jan. 18—Recovered from his recent illness, Propaganda Minister Joseph Goebbels is back at his desk, the London Daily Mail reported today from Berlin.

The dispatch said German government circles maintained that reports Goebbels is in disfavor with Chancellor Hitler were untrue in view of information that the propaganda minister recuperated from his illness at Hitler's Berchtesgaden mountain retreat.

BERLIN, Jan. 18 — German army officers were forbidden today to toast former Kaiser Wilhelm on the occasion of his 80th birthday on Jan. 27 and were ordered to leave any places of entertainment where such toasts are offered.

Nevertheless, it was announced Field Marshal August Von MacKensen, famous German World War commander, will arrive at Doorn to convey to the ex-kaiser the greetings of the former German imperial army.

SALE OF RABBITS IN STATE FLAYED IN HOUSE BILL

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Sale of wild rabbits, whether killed in this state or imported, would be prohibited at all times under a bill sponsored by Rep. R. C. Lutz (D-Richland) in the legislature today.

At present the state law permits their sale during the open season on rabbits from Nov. 15 to Jan. 1.

Another bill Lutz introduced would lessen the penalties for violating orders promulgated by the conservation council. He would slash penalties for violating fishing and hunting regulations from the present $25-200 spread to $10-200.

Lutz also would give magistrates discretion in revoking for one year licenses of hunters and fishermen thus convicted. At present revocation is mandatory.

Subcommittee Chief Cites Figures To Prove His Statement

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—President Roosevelt's estimate that from 1,000,000 to 1,250,000 W.P.A. workers will have to be discharged by June 30 if congress appropriates only $725,000,000 to continue work-relief until that date, was challenged today by Senator Alva Adams (D) of Colorado.

Adams, who is chairman of the senate appropriations subcommittee which is considering the house bill allotting $725,000,000, said evidence before his group indicated that only about 600,000 W.P.A. workers would be dropped.

This reduction will be about the usual number that go off the relief roll in the Spring, according to Adams, who has piloted all of the work-relief bills totaling some $9,000,000,000, through the senate.

"He conveys an impression that is not entirely accurate," Adams said in commenting to newsmen on President Roosevelt's statement at his press conference yesterday that between 4,000,000 and 5,000,000 persons, including dependents, would be denied relief, unless his recommendation for $875,000,000 is adopted by congress.

Figures Disputed

"The average amount of money paid to workers on W.P.A.," Adams said, "is $62 a month. By figuring that into the $150,000,000 deducted by the house from the President's recommendation for $875,000,000, the number of workers that would have to be dropped can be figured. Over a four months' period the total would be 600,000."

SEVEN IRISHMEN IN JAIL AFTER BOMB OUTRAGES

LONDON, Jan. 18 — Seven Irishmen were arrested in Manchester in connection with the outbreak of bombing outrages that terrorized numerous British cities.

Charged under the Explosives Substance act, the prisoners appeared in court and were arraigned following discovery of a bag of dynamite and gelignite, connected to an alarm clock, in an electric pylon over the Manchester ship canal at Barton, Lancashire.

The explosives were removed by police before they exploded.

Meanwhile, Scotland Yard detectives intensified their search for a suspected bomb dump in the London area.

Held under heavy guard, the seven Irishmen were remanded in custody for one week.

The leader of the group issued a formal statement while being arraigned in the Manchester court. He said:

"Before I leave this court, I wish to utter a protest against occupation of Ireland by the English.

Would Impeach Labor Secretary

PUTTING the finishing touches to an elaborate resolution calling for the impeachment of Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, Representative J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey is shown in his Washington office. Thomas, a member of the Dies committee, is expected to introduce the resolution in the house. He is expected to charge Miss Perkins with alleged failure to deport criminal aliens and with the halting of deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader.

Humphreys Fired; Liquor Control Revision Aired

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Plans to reorganize the state liquor department with an annual saving of more than $300,000 were announced today by State Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor.

Al Humphreys, of Columbus, chief of the enforcement division, was dismissed today, Taylor revealed, and E. A. Cullison, an assistant chief, will take over his duties temporarily.

The number of inspectors in the enforcement division, Taylor said, will be reduced from 160 to 80. Some of the inspectors who are to be retained will later be replaced by new men.

In a further economy move, Taylor revealed he would cut the number of assistant chiefs in the enforcement division from five to two. This will mean another saving of about $10,800 annually.

Besides Cullison, assistant chiefs are:

H. B. Armstrong, Akron; Jonathan Finch, Cincinnati; Robert A. Seward, Lorain, and H. M. Smith, Cleveland.

Which of these men will be replaced, Taylor did not say.

The number of enforcement districts will be slashed from 13 to five, Taylor said, and personnel in the districts reduced accordingly.

The permit and enforcement divisions will be immediately combined in an effort to secure a better integrated and more economic operation. This will mean a personnel reduction to be announced later.

Humphrey's permanent successor will be named in a few days, Taylor said. Meanwhile, Cullison will perform the duties of enforcement chief but his salary of $3,600 will remain unchanged. Humphdeys was paid $5,000.

Specific instructions will be issued, Taylor said, that all rules and regulations of the Liquor Control board must be rigidly enforced, thus obviating a necessity for a second reorganization.

At a meetin gthis Friday, Taylor will explain new policies of the Control Board to representatives of all distillers engaging in business with the state.

Effective today, eighteen brands of liquor which have been in stock on a trial basis will be discontinued. Many of the brands have been on trial since last April, Taylor said.

AIR CORPS CHIEF DECLARES NEED FOR NEW PLANES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—The chief of the army air corps, Major-General H. H. Arnold, today told the house military affairs committee the army needs 3,000 additional planes to be built by 1941, and five new strategic bases to assure this country of adequate defense in the air.

As the first witness to testify in support of President Roosevelt's $522,000,000 re-armament program, Gen. Arnold warned the committee, however, that industrial production capacity must be stepped up if the program is to be successful.

If the army's plans to expand production are adopted, he said, it will mean jobs in private industry for between 30,000 to 50,000 mechanics—two to three times the force employed in the private airplane industry today.

Search On For State Property

Typewriters And Cameras Missing, New Governor Declares

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Two special examiners from the state auditor's office began a check of equipment in the chief executive's office today after Gov. John W. Bricker declared he found only old typewriters in the offices whereas there had been new ones there just prior to the time Gov. Davey's term expired.

Bricker said in a press conference that between 15 and 20 cameras were missing also in the highway department, each valued at $150 or more.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson refused to say what equipment his examiners would check or who the investigators were, declaring that to reveal this would only hamper the audit.

There was a possibility that the typewriters were assigned to other jobs along with some of the personnel of Davey's office just before the former chief executive left office.

It was recalled that a new desk in the office of Myrna Smith, Davey's secretary, was found in her new office in the parole board. Bricker ordered it returned to the statehouse.

RENTAL OF GYM CAUSES RIFT IN TOURNEY PLANS

Efforts were being made Wednesday to iron out differences between the Circleville Athletic Club and members of the county basketball tournament committee concerning the rental of the club gymnasium for the county tournament, Feb. 17, 18, 23, 24 and 25.

The club has asked $50 nightly for the gymnasium. The charge last year was $25 a night. Members of the tournament committee, including Myron Johnson, superintendent of Pickaway township school; Carl D. Bennett, superintendent of Walnut township school, and George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, believes $25 is a fair charge.

"Although we feel Circleville is the logical place for the tournament we have to consider the proposition as businessmen," one member said.

In the event difficulties are not ironed out it is possible the tournament may be sectionalized with play in the various school gymnasiums.

HOPKINS GAINS FAVOR DESPITE MINORITY FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—Overriding opposition from a minority group, the senate commerce committee today recommended confirmation of former W.P.A. Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, as secretary of commerce, succeeding Daniel C. Roper, resigned.

Committee approval Hopkins presaged a lengthy discussion of "politics in relief" on the senate floor when the nomination is considered tomorrow.

Hopkins is the last of three recent important appointees by President Roosevelt to be considered by the senate. The senate has approved the appointments of Felix Frankfurter as an associate justice of the supreme court, and Frank Murphy as attorney-general.

The committee vote on Hopkins was 13 to 6, with Senator Bailey (D) of North Carolina, chairman, who has had a long-standing personal feud with Hopkins, not voting.

Metropolitan Districts To Oppose Matching Idea Listed In Bill

FUNDS NOT AVAILABLE

Allocations To Be Made On Basis Of Need During Month

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Opposition to the $5,000,000 poor relief bill succeeded in holding the measure in the public welfare committee today while a sub-committee prepares a re-draft.

O. P. Van Schoik, chief relief examiner in the state auditor's office, hit at the matching clause in the bill and defended a pre-audit of relief, which the bill would eliminate.

Factions seeking to scuttle the bill in committee declared that it did not include a definition of work relief and it was on this contention that a motion for a sub-committee was made.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—A sharp fight over the $5,000,000 emergency poor relief bill may take the center of the stage in the house of representatives today with legislators from metropolitan areas opposing the dollar-for-dollar matching provision.

More optimistic Republican members, however, looked for the measure, which has administration support, to be passed if the public welfare committee reports the bill out after its meeting scheduled earlier.

Ohio League of Municipalities, members, meanwhile, prepared to battle the measure in committee and also planned to meet with Governor Bricker at noon to register their protest of the matching clause on the plea that the cities have no relief matching money available.

To Certify Needs

The bill would appropriate $5,000,000 to the state emergency board from the general revenue fund. The department of public welfare would be required to certify to the board the needs for poor relief in each of the counties. These certifications would be based on information supplied by the political sub-divisions.

The bill, introduced by House Majority Leader J. Harry McGregor (R-Coshocton) provides that administration costs must not exceed 10 percent of the total expenditures for poor relief within the counties.

Allocations would be made monthly to counties on basis of needs by the emergency board. The allocations would not exceed 25 percent of the total in any one month and would be administered by the boards of county commissioners.

The bill also repeals the act providing for administration of relief by a state relief director which was passed in the third special session of the last legislature.

Would Impeach Labor Secretary

PUTTING the finishing touches to an elaborate resolution calling for the impeachment of Frances Perkins, secretary of labor, Representative J. Parnell Thomas of New Jersey is shown in his Washington office. Thomas, a member of the Dies committee, is expected to introduce the resolution in the house. He is expected to charge Miss Perkins with alleged failure to deport criminal aliens and with the halting of deportation proceedings against Harry Bridges, west coast C. I. O. leader.

Humphreys Fired; Liquor Control Revision Aired

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Plans to reorganize the state liquor department with an annual saving of more than $300,000 were announced today by State Liquor Director Jacob B. Taylor.

Al Humphreys, of Columbus, chief of the enforcement division, was dismissed today, Taylor revealed, and E. A. Cullison, an assistant chief, will take over his duties temporarily.

The number of inspectors in the enforcement division, Taylor said, will be reduced from 160 to 80. Some of the inspectors who are to be retained will later be replaced by new men.

In a further economy move, Taylor revealed he would cut the number of assistant chiefs in the enforcement division from five to two. This will mean another saving of about $10,800 annually.

Besides Cullison, assistant chiefs are:

H. B. Armstrong, Akron; Jonathan Finch, Cincinnati; Robert A. Seward, Lorain, and H. M. Smith, Cleveland.

Which of these men will be replaced, Taylor did not say.

The number of enforcement districts will be slashed from 13 to five, Taylor said, and personnel in the districts reduced accordingly.

The permit and enforcement divisions will be immediately combined in an effort to secure a better integrated and more economic operation. This will mean a personnel reduction to be announced later.

Humphrey's permanent successor will be named in a few days, Taylor said. Meanwhile, Cullison will perform the duties of enforcement chief but his salary of $3,600 will remain unchanged. Humphdeys was paid $5,000.

Specific instructions will be issued, Taylor said, that all rules and regulations of the Liquor Control board must be rigidly enforced, thus obviating a necessity for a second reorganization.

At a meetin gthis Friday, Taylor will explain new policies of the Control Board to representatives of all distillers engaging in business with the state.

Effective today, eighteen brands of liquor which have been in stock on a trial basis will be discontinued. Many of the brands have been on trial since last April, Taylor said.

AIR CORPS CHIEF DECLARES NEED FOR NEW PLANES

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—The chief of the army air corps, Major-General H. H. Arnold, today told the house military affairs committee the army needs 3,000 additional planes to be built by 1941, and five new strategic bases to assure this country of adequate defense in the air.

As the first witness to testify in support of President Roosevelt's $522,000,000 re-armament program, Gen. Arnold warned the committee, however, that industrial production capacity must be stepped up if the program is to be successful.

If the army's plans to expand production are adopted, he said, it will mean jobs in private industry for between 30,000 to 50,000 mechanics—two to three times the force employed in the private airplane industry today.

Search On For State Property

Typewriters And Cameras Missing, New Governor Declares

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Two special examiners from the state auditor's office began a check of equipment in the chief executive's office today after Gov. John W. Bricker declared he found only old typewriters in the offices whereas there had been new ones there just prior to the time Gov. Davey's term expired.

Bricker said in a press conference that between 15 and 20 cameras were missing also in the highway department, each valued at $150 or more.

State Auditor Joseph T. Ferguson refused to say what equipment his examiners would check or who the investigators were, declaring that to reveal this would only hamper the audit.

There was a possibility that the typewriters were assigned to other jobs along with some of the personnel of Davey's office just before the former chief executive left office.

It was recalled that a new desk in the office of Myrna Smith, Davey's secretary, was found in her new office in the parole board. Bricker ordered it returned to the statehouse.

RENTAL OF GYM CAUSES RIFT IN TOURNEY PLANS

Efforts were being made Wednesday to iron out differences between the Circleville Athletic Club and members of the county basketball tournament committee concerning the rental of the club gymnasium for the county tournament, Feb. 17, 18, 23, 24 and 25.

The club has asked $50 nightly for the gymnasium. The charge last year was $25 a night. Members of the tournament committee, including Myron Johnson, superintendent of Pickaway township school; Carl D. Bennett, superintendent of Walnut township school, and George D. McDowell, superintendent of county schools, believes $25 is a fair charge.

"Although we feel Circleville is the logical place for the tournament we have to consider the proposition as businessmen," one member said.

In the event difficulties are not ironed out it is possible the tournament may be sectionalized with play in the various school gymnasiums.

HOPKINS GAINS FAVOR DESPITE MINORITY FIGHT

WASHINGTON, Jan. 18—Overriding opposition from a minority group, the senate commerce committee today recommended confirmation of former W.P.A. Administrator Harry L. Hopkins, as secretary of commerce, succeeding Daniel C. Roper, resigned.

Committee approval Hopkins presaged a lengthy discussion of "politics in relief" on the senate floor when the nomination is considered tomorrow.

Hopkins is the last of three recent important appointees by President Roosevelt to be considered by the senate. The senate has approved the appointments of Felix Frankfurter as an associate justice of the supreme court, and Frank Murphy as attorney-general.

The committee vote on Hopkins was 13 to 6, with Senator Bailey (D) of North Carolina, chairman, who has had a long-standing personal feud with Hopkins, not voting.

FIVE MILLIONS REQUESTED FOR NEEDY OF OHIO

Metropolitan Districts To Oppose Matching Idea Listed In Bill

FUNDS NOT AVAILABLE

Allocations To Be Made On Basis Of Need During Month

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Opposition to the $5,000,000 poor relief bill succeeded in holding the measure in the public welfare committee today while a sub-committee prepares a re-draft.

O. P. Van Schoik, chief relief examiner in the state auditor's office, hit at the matching clause in the bill and defended a pre-audit of relief, which the bill would eliminate.

Factions seeking to scuttle the bill in committee declared that it did not include a definition of work relief and it was on this contention that a motion for a sub-committee was made.

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—A sharp fight over the $5,000,000 emergency poor relief bill may take the center of the stage in the house of representatives today with legislators from metropolitan areas opposing the dollar-for-dollar matching provision.

More optimistic Republican members, however, looked for the measure, which has administration support, to be passed if the public welfare committee reports the bill out after its meeting scheduled earlier.

Ohio League of Municipalities, members, meanwhile, prepared to battle the measure in committee and also planned to meet with Governor Bricker at noon to register their protest of the matching clause on the plea that the cities have no relief matching money available.

To Certify Needs

The bill would appropriate $5,000,000 to the state emergency board from the general revenue fund. The department of public welfare would be required to certify to the board the needs for poor relief in each of the counties. These certifications would be based on information supplied by the political sub-divisions.

The bill, introduced by House Majority Leader J. Harry McGregor (R-Coshocton) provides that administration costs must not exceed 10 percent of the total expenditures for poor relief within the counties.

Allocations would be made monthly to counties on basis of needs by the emergency board. The allocations would not exceed 25 percent of the total in any one month and would be administered by the boards of county commissioners.

The bill also repeals the act providing for administration of relief by a state relief director which was passed in the third special session of the last legislature.

Two-Thirds Vote Needed

As an emergency measure it will require a vote of two-thirds

Illustrating his theory by using television to make part of his address, Sarnoff spoke before the annual dinner of the Poor Richard club, Philadelphia advertising men's organization, and received the club's 1938 medal of achievement.

Sarnoff addressed the diners from a hotel room several rooms away from the banquet hall, his voice and image appearing on a television screen.

"In due time we shall see as well as hear through the air," he said. "And this will not be all. The promise of the future is greater than the glories of the past.

W. P. A. PROGRAM OF RECREATION WINS SUPPORT

Operation Of Centers Cuts Juvenile Delinquency, Authorities Say

SIX LOCATIONS USED

Part Of Setup Outlined; Many Diversions Provided

Operation of recreation centers in Circleville under W. P. A. has caused a marked reduction in delinquency, city and county officers declare.

"I have noticed that since these recreation centers have been in operation there are fewer children on the streets at night and fewer complaints have been received in juvenile court," Frank Goff, juvenile officer, announced. "These centers develop children physically and mentally. I believe Circleville should have a permanent recreation center for children to take up their idle time."

Police Chief William McCrady says that since the recreation project has been in operation the calls to the police department during the evening requesting aid in handling problems of children have shown a marked decrease.

Six recreation projects are operated in the county, four of them in Circleville. Those in Circleville are in the Goldfrederick building, Ladoga office building, African M. E. church and Memorial hall. A center is conducted in the Pythian Sisters hall in Williamsport and in the Ashville school.

Open School Days

The centers are open on school days from 4 to 8 p. m. and on Saturdays from 9 a. m. to 5 p. m. The total average attendance each day at the six centers is 125.

D. H. Marcy, county relief director, reported in checking the cost of the recreation program to keep the children under trained supervision is only six cents per child per day. The cost of the project is paid from three sources, federal, county and local donations.

The recreation program, sponsored by the county commissioners, is designed to offer children a place in their free time where they may have constructive play and other activities under trained supervision. The members of the recreation staff attend a training school conducted for them once each week where new ideas and different branches of recreation are taught to them by persons educated and experienced in this field.

Equipment for the play centers is furnished by the sponsor and include such items as: board games of all types, paint, water colors, wood, tools, balls, bats, volley balls and nets, footballs, croquet sets, horse shoes, ping pong tables and sets, sewing material, weaving material and all other supplies that are found necessary as the program goes along.

Under Seven Headings

The program which is followed is set up under seven general headings, arts and crafts, physical activities, dancing, music, drama, nature study and special events. Under arts and crafts comes the classes in painting, drawing, printing, wood burning, transfer work, sun printing, carving, manual training, sewing, weaving, and many others of this type. Under physical activities comes all games both quiet and active, wrestling, boxing, field events and organized sports. Under dancing there are folk dances, interpretive and ap dancing. Under music is conducted group singing, solo work, harmony and instrumental music. Under drama comes pantomine, puppet and marionette shows, sketches and short plays, story-telling and dialogue. The children are taken on hikes to gather information and material for their nature study classes. Special events are held once each week and are in the form of contests, hikes, field meets, derbys, skating parties, weiner roasts, amateur programs, doll shows, pet parades and many others.

There are fourteen supervisors on the staff in Circleville.

Postoffice Data Given For Year's Operation

By S. D. Fridley

Here is another one—the kind we most wanted. The report we printed the other day was alright as far as it reached, but we wanted one which covered the entire business of the last year and here it is as Postmaster Smith furnished it. Summary of business for 1938 as transacted at the Ashville postoffice; number of money orders written for year, 5389; number paid for year, 839; amount of cash received for the 5389 orders, $37,087.39; fees for same, $469.90; special delivery letters and packages, 371; stamp sales, $5,445; surplus funds sent to general accounting office, $34,343.51.

Came across Tuesday, at headquarters, one William (Bill) Duvall who is a topnotcher in growing both large and fine quality pie pumpkins. And in season, Bill furnishes many a truck load to the classy restaurants of Columbus, Cleveland and Cincinnati. "It is quality these shops want and that's what they get in my goods," he said. More, he told us, he has a patch of ground of some several acres (8 or 10 maybe) that he thinks will be just right to grow some of the kind that are good to look at. So you "big pumpkin boys" who are already turning over in your mind, those winnings you expect to make at next Fall's show, would better push up a notch or so and keep out of your friend Duvall's way.

Jonsey Messick who might be classed as a live stock dealer, says it is horses and ponies for him. Like any other live stock there is always a market for good horses. Has only one in stock now, but thinks there are a number in surrounding territory awaiting a buyer. Ed Messick, Jonsey's dad, is a widely known horse buyer having been in the business for years.

Was out at the school auditorium today attending the Farmer's Institute and so far as we know now (the evening before) everything moved along smoothly. But it may all be different when once we are actually there, and if it is, we'll be telling you about it. Several have already told us how they expect to win first place and the ten dollar prize, in the amateur, "What Have You?" contest. There are 16 entries, so it is sure to be interesting. The Methodist ladies who have to do with preparing the institute meals, tell us that the farm people in surrounding territory have been very liberal in contributing supplies for these meals. And it is because of these abundant contributions that chicken dinners are served both institute days.

Cecil Scott, waterworks superintendent, when we asked him if there were any new thing in his line of work, said right now there is nothing of special interest doing, but thought by Spring there might be several water installations.

Mrs. Martha McNeal with her family, Mary, Ralph and Royle have removed from Ashville to Columbus and Robert Hampp has removed from So. Bloomfield to Ashville his household goods temporarily in storage until a dwelling can be found.

Numerous new dog tags are making their appearance and their wearers feel secure for another year. And that reminds us that the big, friendly police dog, everybody's friend and with headquarters about the postoffice and Cains, has disappeared and that's another job to learn what has become of him.

HOMECOMING FOR CANTOR

A homecoming for the "Mayor" is planned for Wednesday when Eddie Cantor returns to his old sponsors' haunts for one evening as guest emcee of Star Theatre, via CBS at 9 p. m. The portable microphone which Cantor introduced on his own program this week will serve him to good advantage with his Star Theatre assignment, for according to Producer Bill Bacher's plans, the popeyed little comedian will be all over the stage chatting with members of the cast, Charles Ruggles, Frances Langford and Kenny Baker, David Broekman. Jimmy Wallington, and mournful-voiced Ned Sparks, singing a song he has written especially for the occasion, "I Used to Be Mayor" and whipping through a comedy spot with his own stooge, Mr. Guffy.

CROSBY AND BURNS

Colonel Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle takes his life in his hands and visits Bing Crosby and Bob Burns in the Music Hall Thursday. Other guests who join Crosby, Burns, the Paul Taylor chorus and John Scott Trotter's orchestra in the broadcast over the NBC red network at 10 p. m. are Anita Louise, of the movies, and Emanuel Feuermann, world famous cellist.

Crosby and Burns have a villainous plan to break up Stoopnagle with a varied assortment of "ad libs" and the meeting promises to be one of the peak points of Winter comedy. Stoopnagle of course has been known to improvise some impromptu humor himself in the course of his radio career.

DONALD DICKSON

Donald Dickson, young baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, will be a featured soloist on the air beginning Sunday, Feb. 5. Nelson Eddy is leaving the same program after the broadcast of Jan. 29 for a few months vacation and to make a concert tour. He will return later in the year.

Dickson made several appearances on the broadcasts last season and now returns as a regular member of the cast of the Sunday broadcasts over the NBC red network at 8 p. m. for the Spring and Summer. He is one of the few important singers who have come to the top by the radio route. Dickson was singing regularly in a radio program when he was signed by the Metropolitan as an addition to its baritone ranks.

A homecoming for the "Mayor" is planned for Wednesday when Eddie Cantor returns to his old sponsors' haunts for one evening as guest emcee of Star Theatre, via CBS at 9 p. m. The portable microphone which Cantor introduced on his own program this week will serve him to good advantage with his Star Theatre assignment, for according to Producer Bill Bacher's plans, the popeyed little comedian will be all over the stage chatting with members of the cast, Charles Ruggles, Frances Langford and Kenny Baker, David Broekman. Jimmy Wallington, and mournful-voiced Ned Sparks, singing a song he has written especially for the occasion, "I Used to Be Mayor" and whipping through a comedy spot with his own stooge, Mr. Guffy.

CROSBY AND BURNS

Colonel Lemuel Q. Stoopnagle takes his life in his hands and visits Bing Crosby and Bob Burns in the Music Hall Thursday. Other guests who join Crosby, Burns, the Paul Taylor chorus and John Scott Trotter's orchestra in the broadcast over the NBC red network at 10 p. m. are Anita Louise, of the movies, and Emanuel Feuermann, world famous cellist.

Crosby and Burns have a villainous plan to break up Stoopnagle with a varied assortment of "ad libs" and the meeting promises to be one of the peak points of Winter comedy. Stoopnagle of course has been known to improvise some impromptu humor himself in the course of his radio career.

DONALD DICKSON

Donald Dickson, young baritone of the Metropolitan Opera, will be a featured soloist on the air beginning Sunday, Feb. 5. Nelson Eddy is leaving the same program after the broadcast of Jan. 29 for a few months vacation and to make a concert tour. He will return later in the year.

Dickson made several appearances on the broadcasts last season and now returns as a regular member of the cast of the Sunday broadcasts over the NBC red network at 8 p. m. for the Spring and Summer. He is one of the few important singers who have come to the top by the radio route. Dickson was singing regularly in a radio program when he was signed by the Metropolitan as an addition to its baritone ranks.

Joe E. Brown Coming to Cliftona

BEVERLY ROBERTS and Joe E. Brown switch a bit of romance between the laughs of "Flirting with Fate," the new Brown rib-tickler which opens Friday on a double feature with "Gene Autry" at the Cliftona theatre. Others in the cast include Leo Carrillo, Wynne Gibson and Steffi Duna.

OHIO EMPLOYERS ARE INFORMED OF EXCISE TAX

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Ohio employers liable for payment of the excise tax under Title IX of the Social Security Act by having eight or more employees must pay the 2.7 percent contribution due to the ninety percent credit allowed against the federal tax for contributions paid the state, Walter J. Mackey, employers' representative on the commission, warned today.

Ordinarily employers' quarterly contributions to the state's unemployment compensation fund are due on the last day of the month following the quarter for which they are paid.

However since the Social Security Act provides that employers may take credit against the federal tax only for contributions paid the state before the date for filing the federal return (Form 940 Internal Revenue Department) due January 31, 1939, the state job insurance officials have issued a notice to all covered employers that their final contribution for 1938 must be paid on or before January 30th, 1939, to receive the credit.

This includes not only the contribution for the last quarter of 1938, but any due for prior periods that year on which employers may be delinquent, according to Commissioner Mackey.

Last year January 30 was Sunday, the Commissioner explained, hence the federal government granted a one-day extension, making the federal return and the due date for the contribution to the state unemployment compensation commission fall on the same day. But, this year the state contribution must be paid ahead of the federal return for employers to receive full credit.

Only employers of three or more are liable to the state and those with eight or more to both state and federal, the state contribution rate being 2.7 percent of wages payable to employees and the federal the remaining .3 percent which is paid through the Internal Revenue Department.

Meetings To Be Planned By Matthaes; Miami Countian Speaks

A series of meetings in the various townships of the county to present the 1939 farm program to farmers was being arranged Wednesday by Paul Matthaes, secretary of the county Agricultural Conservation committee.

The schedule of meetings will be announced Thursday, Mr. Matthaes said. Members of the county committee, including John Boggs, Circleville, Wilbur Brinker, Walnut township, and Dewey Downs, Darby township, will be the speakers.

Fifty community committeemen of the county attended a meeting Tuesday in Memorial hall to hear details of the program explained. Robert Miles, of Miami county, field representative for the district which included Pickaway county was principal speaker. In general the 1939 program is practically the same as last year's program.

E. P. COSTIGAN, FORMER SOL O N, DIES IN DENVER

DENVER, Jan. 18—The death of Edward Prentiss Costigan, former U. S. senator from Colorado, was mourned today throughout the state by friend and political foe alike. He was 64.

Senator Costigan died at 7:07 o'clock last night at his home in Denver. At his bedside were his wife, Mrs. Mabel Cory Costigan, and Miss Josephine Roche, close friend and long-time political associate.

He was stricken with a cold four days ago. Lobar pneumonia developed yesterday, and he later suffered an acute heart attack.

Senator Costigan had been in ill health for some years, his condition causing his retirement from public life in April, 1936, and he did not seek reelection. His illness had necessitated the amputation of one leg.

ORIGINAL 'PECK'S BAD BOY' DIES IN MILWAUKEE

MILWAUKEE, Wis., Jan. 18 — Funeral services were to be held today for Edward J. Watson, whose pranks as a youth inspired "Peck's Bad Boy." He died last night at the age of 77.

Watson's father was a friend of George W. Peck, editor of a weekly paper at the time. The distraught parent complained of the practical jokes played by his boy until Peck set them down on paper in a series of stories.

Later mayor of Milwaukee and governor of Wisconsin, Peck continued a life-long friendship with Watson who was fond of telling about the stories.

Peck, he said, once met him and apologized for not sharing the profits.

"'They made me a quarter of a million,'" Watson would quote Peck as saying, "'and you deserved it. I'd give it to you now except this is all I have left.'"

And Peck, Watson would say, held up a street car transfer.

A messenger boy when he was immortalized as a scamp. Watson later became an executive of the same telegraph company.

BETTER THINGS TO BUY

IF the present improvement in business doesn't turn out to be the real thing, carrying us to former heights of prosperity and beyond, it will certainly not be for want of new and better products to attract buyers.

It seems strange, when you think of it, that more emphasis has not been put on this remarkable phase of American business. Look at almost any kind of merchandise today, in the stores, in the newspaper advertising pages, in people's homes, and compare them mentally with the corresponding lines of goods we had before the big depression.

You will find literally thousands of new products, and you will find thousands of improvements made on old products. Clothing, shoes, furniture, kitchen utensils, floor coverings, curtains, hardware, stoves, furnaces, household appliances of countless kinds, paints and varnishes, table ware, automobiles and trucks, lawn mowers, wheelbarrows, cutlery, and so on and on.

Nearly everything money will buy is better than it was ten years ago, and there are many new things of use and beauty. This is so true that sometimes it seems almost a misfortune, because so many things we used to like are now unsatisfactory, and invite or compel replacement.

Obsolescence has become a tremendous factor in our life and work. But speaking broadly, this is the most hopeful thing about the whole situation. The world, industrially, commercially, artistically and hygienically, is being made over. When the process is a little further along, we should have such a burst of prosperity as this generation has never seen.

POISON ACCIDENTS

ONE night recently a man with a headache went to the family medcine cabinet to get a tablet to ease the misery and enable him to go to sleep. He thought he knew exactly where the bottle stood, so he did not turn on a light. He picked up a bottle of poison tablets by mistake, swallowed one or two and died the next day.

His story was, unfortunately, not unique. The mistake of keeping dangerous poisons around the house where children or sick people can get hold of them is made by an amazing number of families that ought to know better.

There are a few simple first-aid materials which belong in family medicine cabinets. A doctor or other qualified person could give a list of these articles. It would not include poison in any form. It would not even include left-over medicines prescribed for a member of the family during some previous illness. ADMINISTRATION FIGURES

WASHINGTON—Tip-off on the rabbit the Administration is counting on pulling out of its hat to save the President's $875,000,000 WPA budget from pruning was the failure of House leaders to force a record vote on the bill. Behind this seemingly hostile or incompetent action was some very cagey strategy.

The New Deal master minds had got wind that Senate Republican leaders were secretly uneasy over the $150,000,000 cut. Also, with the GOP minority in the Senate much smaller than in the House, the Administration figured there was a fighting chance to hold enough Senate Democrats in line to restore the slash.

So to keep the door open for the boys in the House to reverse themselves without embarrassment, in the event the Senate does approve the original budget, the New Deal leaders did not insist on a record vote. It was a long shot, but it was the only one left.

Senate Republican jitters are caused by two factors:

1. Fear of adverse public reaction to cutting relief in mid-winter. Privately GOP leaders report they are being deluged with telegrams and letters from local officials and business men strongly advising against a WPA cut at this time.

2. Concern that if the WPA appropriation is cut and business conditions slump, Roosevelt will be able to alibi it by blaming the GOP. On the other hand, if $875,000,000 is voted and there is a recession anyway, he will have no defense.

The Republican chiefs admit they are caught in a dilemma. They are strongly for economy, but at the same time afraid that if the lid is clamped down too abruptly on government spending, there will be another economic nose-dive and they will get the brickbats for it.

Older heads among them are counseling to lay off the $875,000,000 fund but to crack down hard on the regular WPA and other spending proposals in the Spring.

NOTE—Senator Bill Borah has privately served notice on his GOP colleagues that he will not stand for a relief cut, and will fight such a move on the Senate floor.

DIET AND HEALTH

More Careful Diet Required For Aged

By LOGAN CLENDENING, M. D.

REGULATION of the diet in the elderly is more important than at any other period of life, except infancy. And it is even harder than in infancy because habit fights every attempt to make changes. There are two classes of old people who are especially hard to handle. Because the senses of taste and smell are blunted, some of them crave highly seasoned, rich food. They almost invariably suffer from their indulgences because the appetite is way ahead of the capacity of the digestive system to take care of their preferments.

The old people of today were brought up at a time when food was simpler and coarser and less varied.

Dr. Clendening will answer questions of general interest only, and then only through his column.

Some stick tenaciously to the habits of their youth and refuse to accept any of the great number of new and varied foods which are put on the market so inexpensively today.

Hard on the Old

The doctrine that roughage and a coarse diet will relieve constipation may be all right for the middle-aged but it is a very bad doctrine for the aged. Constipation is a regular feature of the latter decades of life, but here roughage is not indicated.

There is a very good reason for the constipation of old age. The intestinal walls become thinned out and a pouching in the lower part of the large intestine — the colonic pouch—is a regular finding in people above 70. This pouch catches food and causes stasis and gives the impression of an accumulation in the intestines. These sensations the patient tries to relieve by more and more, and stronger and stronger cathartics. This tendency must be resisted. An occasional enema is much more satisfactory than a cathartic by mouth. Stones often form in these pouches and have to be removed mechanically.

If a cathartic is to be used for old people, the best is cascara, which should not be taken more than once every other day.

Soft Foods

This being the main difficulty, the diet of the aged should consist of soft foods, such as well cooked meats, puréed vegetables, fruit juices, milk, custards, eggs, toast, etc. Peas, beans, cabbage, cucumbers and tomatoes usually cause gas and bloating.

"Wine is the milk of the aged," and one of the best digestants after the age of 60 is a glass of sherry or port wine with meals. These do not affect the stomach and seem to give strength.

Old Dr. George Cheyne used to say that we should go out of life as we came in—on a diet of milk. This opinion, however, is 300 years old, and most modern specialists in diseases of old age believe that a glass or two of milk a day, along with other food, is as much as can be tolerated.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

L. B. M.: "In the case of grandchildren, one four, one two, visiting a grandfather returned from the sanitarium with an arrested tuberculosis—no cough, no expectoration, but sputum not quite negative yet—are the children in danger if they come in the same room, but are not lifted up or held by the patient? Would contact with books, magazines or clothing of the patient endanger the children?"

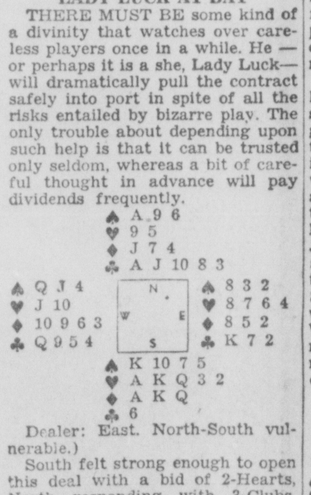

Answer: I know it is tough on the grandfather, but you have described the finest set-up in the world for the transmission of tuberculosis. If they were my children I would want them a long way off from grandfather. The tubercle bacillus lives on books, magazines and clothing.

South felt strong enough to open this deal with a bid of 2-Hearts, North responding with 3-Clubs. Next came 3-Spades from South, 4-Clubs from North, 4-Hearts from South and 5-Hearts from North, a slam invitation which South refused because he felt he had already gone pretty strong by opening with a game-guarantee two bid on a hand with no surplus values. If the slam was there, he reasoned, North would have to bid it, not invite it.

After the diamond 10 was led, South's soundest play was probably to try three rounds of spades, so as to be in shape to ruff the fourth if the suit didn't break, and then to go for trumps. This would make it pretty sure that at the worst only one trick could be lost in each major.

But no. South won the diamond lead, led to the club A, returned a small club, East playing his K and getting it ruffed, and then South took two more high diamonds, risking a ruff unnecessarily. A spade was led, West false-carding the Q and the A winning, next a spade to the K and three high hearts, establishing East's 8. A spade to West's J, however, made the contract secure. Had East been able to win this, his heart 8 could have dropped South's last trump and the club Q would have been the last trick. But West, no matter what he led, could not help giving South a trick on a ruff with his last trump, making the contract. * * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

If West had bid his clubs and East had finally doubled the 6-Heart contract, how should South try for it against a lead of the club K?

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

RICHARD WITHERSPOON thrummed his fingers nervously upon his knee. His face was wan and haggard and his eyes, darting here and there, held a hint of fear.

"There's nothing to worry about," Ellis assured him. "I'm just trying to straighten out a few things."

"I'm not worried!" Richard fiercely denied the implication. "What have I to be worried about?"

"I'm sure I don't know." The chief smiled. "The one and only person who should be worried is the murderer, and I don't suppose you're that one?"

"Of course not!" The thrumming fingers beat a rapid tattoo. "You're wasting your time with me. I don't know a thing!"

"Oh, I'm not saying that you do. A nice boy like you wouldn't kill his mother—and maybe his grandmother, too—much as he hated them, would he?"

"Hated them? I didn't hate them!"

"No?" The policeman paused deliberately. "I've heard that you and your grandmother didn't get along very well. Maybe I was mistaken. Was I?"

Richard's gaze faltered. He looked down at the floor. "Grandmother was difficult," he muttered at last, "but I didn't hate her."

"But you quarreled with her, didn't you? You quarreled with her the night before the ball, didn't you?"

Richard swallowed with difficulty. "How—how did you know?" I wondered the same thing. How did Ellis know?

He said: "I hear things. You can't keep many secrets in a big house like this. What was this quarrel about, son?"

"Why"—the boy dug his fingernails deep into the palms of his hands—"why, it wasn't anything serious. Grandmother and I—sometimes we rubbed one another the wrong way."

"It wouldn't have been about money, would it?" the chief suggested helpfully.

"Of course not!"

"You weren't in debt, were you, and trying to borrow a large sum of money from your grandmother?"

"That—that's ridiculous!" Richard seemed to force the words from his throat. "Grandmother didn't believe in lending money to anyone."

"So the only way you could get the money you needed was to kill her?" Chief Ellis spoke so softly that at first the boy failed to grasp his meaning.

"I—" he began, and stopped dead. His face was the color of dried putty. Beads of moisture formed on his forehead. "Grandmother died of a heart attack!"

"Maybe," said Ellis. "Maybe."

"What do you mean?" Richard's voice was a whisper.

"Listen, son!" The police officer towered above him, "we have reason to believe that your grandmother was murdered. Oh, don't act so surprised. You've known it all along! And you must admit things look black for you. You had the motive! Better tell me everything and get it over!"

"You shan't railroad me!" Richard leaped to his feet. The fear in his eyes was a living thing, it was consuming him. "Grandmother died of a heart attack! You can't accuse me of murder!"

"Easy, lad." McIntyre stepped forward. "No one is going to railroad you. Mr. Ellis is a bit premature in his accusations. Sit down and get a grip on yourself. You needn't talk unless you feel up to it."

"Keep out of this, please!" ordered Chief Ellis tersely. "I'm conducting this inquiry."

Mac faced him quietly. "If you don't want a suit for false arrest on your hands," he said sharply, "you had better go easy. Third degrees won't work here; you're not handling thugs. As agent for the Witherspoon family I shall challenge you whenever I see fit."

"You can't interfere with justice!" the other said angrily. "I'll handle things MY way."

"I wouldn't do that," Mac said, and I understood why the gangsters and hoodlums of Chicago kept out of his way. There was an undercurrent beneath the calm quiet of his voice that chilled me through and through. I think Ellis sensed something of this, too, for his anger died and he motioned young Richard away. The lad fled from the room.

"What have you done to my brother?" Daphne burst in upon us, and marched militantly toward the chief of police. "How long is this torture of innocent persons to be permitted?" She whirled upon Mac. "I thought it was your job to protect us! You got father to hire you! But I suppose that was one of your tricks. I suppose you are hand in glove with the police!"

"That will do!" commanded McIntyre curtly, and from sheer surprise the girl was silent. "Sit down!"

"Oh!" Daphne, her wits suddenly scattered, obeyed.

"Now, Miss Witherspoon," he continued more gently, "you have me all wrong. I am trying to help and protect you. I did not, however, bargain to shield the guilty. I intend to find the murderer. It will be wise for you and your brother—and your guests—to tell the truth. If you are innocent, you shan't suffer. I'll see to that.

"Another thing," he went on, "I do not want to meddle in your private affairs. I'm not interested in skeletons, if any, which you may have hidden in your clothes. But," he added meaningly, "I am interested in any and all information pertaining to the crime. If you can tell me anything that will aid in clearing up some of the minor mysteries in this case, it is your duty to speak. You follow me, Miss Witherspoon?"

"I—" she stammered and Mac nodded. Daphne followed him, but I, for one, did not.

"Very well," he continued, "I'm going to ask you a question or two. You'll do well to answer truthfully."

"I'll ask the questions," Ellis put in. "You have no authority—"

Mac brushed him aside: "Your turn will come later. Now, Miss Witherspoon?"

"Well?"

"You stated earlier that at the time of your mother's death your brother, Richard, at your special request, went into town on some errands. Correct?"

"Yes."

"What were these errands?"

"He—he bought me some toothpaste at the drug store and some picture post cards at the Kirby hotel."

"Haven't you forgotten something?"

"No-o."

"Didn't he send a telegram for you at the Western Union depot in the hotel?"

"Western Union depot?" echoed Daphne, and her expression altered; it became sly, secretive. She laughed nervously. "Why, yes—I had forgotten. I had Rich send a wire to a friend of mine."

"May I have this friend's name and address?"

"Surely. It is Miss Lorena Stevens, Baxter apartments, East Fifty-seventh street, New York City."

"Thank you."

"I—I don't see what my telegram has to do with—with the murder!" Again her nervous laughter rippled through the room. "My mother was dead long before Rich reached the hotel!"

"True," agreed Mac. "Your mother was dead, and your grandmother also."

"Oh!" She closed her eyes and sort of swayed back and forth in her chair. I felt terribly sorry for her without knowing why. "Why do you say that?" she demanded hoarsely. "Why?"

"Don't you know?" queried Mac. There was a second's stillness; then the girl smiled slightly as she half-whispered:

"You aren't even warm, Mr. Detective, not even warm!"

"What is all this?" Ellis exclaimed, irritably.

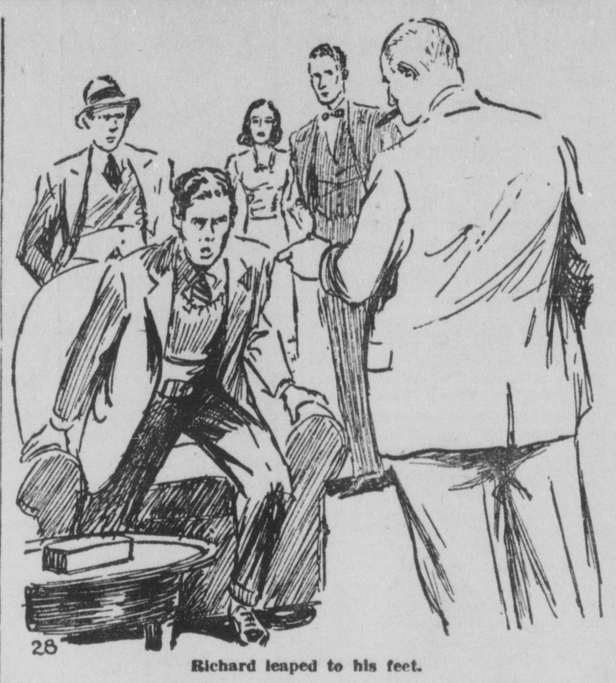

"Perhaps Mr. McIntyre will explain," Daphne replied, and arose and walked swiftly from the room.

"Holding out on us?" demanded Phil. "What's up?"

"Time enough for that later," Mac told him. "Better get on with it, chief."

"O. K." Mac shrugged.

Richard leaped to his feet.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

With congress up to its ears in consideration of the biggest military program in the country's peace-time history, several of Capitol Hill's best authorities on the subject are urging the formation of a joint committee of senators and representatives to determine just what are Uncle Sam's army, naval and aviation needs—and to deal with the whole thing as a single issue.

It isn't a bad idea.

At the present there are four congressional committees wrestling with questions relating to our potential fighting strength: Chairmen Morris Sheppard's and Andrew J. May's army groups, respectively of the upper and lower legislative chambers; Chairmen David I. Walsh's and Carl Vinson's navy aggregations, likewise respectively senatorial and representatorial. These committees do not cooperate worth a cent. That is to say, perhaps there is a certain community of interest between the two army set-ups on one side, and the two navy crowds on the other side, but there is not a bit of it between the army and the navy men. They are at least mutually indifferent and maybe a trifle jealous of one another.

As for aviation, it is an orphan. True, the army wants plenty of flyers and so does the navy, but there's no thought of coordination between them. Most of the rest of the world's major powers have independent aviation ministries. Our aviation branch is all split up—not only between the army and navy, but the Commerce department horns in on it also. The Commerce folks' concern, indeed, is with civil rather than military airmanship, but the two are mixed together, just as our war fleet is largely dependent upon an up-to-date merchant marine.

OUR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Now, naturally our national defense's efficiency depends greatly upon inter-departmental and inter-service union.

It is not altogether a matter of efficiency, either. It likewise is a matter of economy. We are talking today in terms of billions for defensive purposes. It pays us to save here and there, if we can, a few hundreds of millions by planning cohesively.

Incidentally there is considerable congressional opposition to the administration's preparedness scheme. Even pacifistic legislators are favorable to adequately defensive appropriations, but there is a deal of objection to anything like running wild militarily. And that is what the White House is suspected of. It would be to the President's own advantage to start an impartial-sounding legislative investigation to prove his case — as far as possible.

I am convinced that the average American does not deem armament-building a nice way of MAKING work. He prefers even boondoggling to any war preparations beyond absolute necessity.

TOO MANY DEPARTMENTS?

From the standpoint of pure efficiency, a consolidation of departments might be a bright notion.

The United States started off with a War Department—including the navy. Well, why not? If we have a war, the navy's a part of it. They were split in two a considerable number of years later. It was a mistake, I think.

The War Department was the main thing originally—I mean the army department.

As of the date the Navy Department tail wags the War Department dog—of war.

Overseas fighting is all we have to reckon with—except, possibly, over-air fighting.

While we are reorganizing and thus (supposedly) improving the government, what's the matter with reunionizing army and navy into a rational "Defense Department"? And scooping in aviation?

We say we're trying to simplify government.

BETTER THINGS TO BUY

IF the present improvement in business doesn't turn out to be the real thing, carrying us to former heights of prosperity and beyond, it will certainly not be for want of new and better products to attract buyers.

It seems strange, when you think of it, that more emphasis has not been put on this remarkable phase of American business. Look at almost any kind of merchandise today, in the stores, in the newspaper advertising pages, in people's homes, and compare them mentally with the corresponding lines of goods we had before the big depression.

You will find literally thousands of new products, and you will find thousands of improvements made on old products. Clothing, shoes, furniture, kitchen utensils, floor coverings, curtains, hardware, stoves, furnaces, household appliances of countless kinds, paints and varnishes, table ware, automobiles and trucks, lawn mowers, wheelbarrows, cutlery, and so on and on.

Nearly everything money will buy is better than it was ten years ago, and there are many new things of use and beauty. This is so true that sometimes it seems almost a misfortune, because so many things we used to like are now unsatisfactory, and invite or compel replacement.

Obsolescence has become a tremendous factor in our life and work. But speaking broadly, this is the most hopeful thing about the whole situation. The world, industrially, commercially, artistically and hygienically, is being made over. When the process is a little further along, we should have such a burst of prosperity as this generation has never seen.

POISON ACCIDENTS

ONE night recently a man with a headache went to the family medcine cabinet to get a tablet to ease the misery and enable him to go to sleep. He thought he knew exactly where the bottle stood, so he did not turn on a light. He picked up a bottle of poison tablets by mistake, swallowed one or two and died the next day.

His story was, unfortunately, not unique. The mistake of keeping dangerous poisons around the house where children or sick people can get hold of them is made by an amazing number of families that ought to know better.

There are a few simple first-aid materials which belong in family medicine cabinets. A doctor or other qualified person could give a list of these articles. It would not include poison in any form. It would not even include left-over medicines prescribed for a member of the family during some previous illness. After the diamond 10 was led, South's soundest play was probably to try three rounds of spades, so as to be in shape to ruff the fourth if the suit didn't break, and then to go for trumps. This would make it pretty sure that at the worst only one trick could be lost in each major.

But no. South won the diamond lead, led to the club A, returned a small club, East playing his K and getting it ruffed, and then South took two more high diamonds, risking a ruff unnecessarily. A spade was led, West false-carding the Q and the A winning, next a spade to the K and three high hearts, establishing East's 8. A spade to West's J, however, made the contract secure. Had East been able to win this, his heart 8 could have dropped South's last trump and the club Q would have been the last trick. But West, no matter what he led, could not help giving South a trick on a ruff with his last trump, making the contract. * * *

Tomorrow's Problem

(Dealer: North. North-South vulnerable.)

If West had bid his clubs and East had finally doubled the 6-Heart contract, how should South try for it against a lead of the club K?

DEATH AT THE MANOR

BY M. E. CORNE

RELEASED BY CENTRAL PRESS ASSOCIATION

CHAPTER TWENTY-EIGHT

RICHARD WITHERSPOON thrummed his fingers nervously upon his knee. His face was wan and haggard and his eyes, darting here and there, held a hint of fear.

"There's nothing to worry about," Ellis assured him. "I'm just trying to straighten out a few things."

"I'm not worried!" Richard fiercely denied the implication. "What have I to be worried about?"

"I'm sure I don't know." The chief smiled. "The one and only person who should be worried is the murderer, and I don't suppose you're that one?"

"Of course not!" The thrumming fingers beat a rapid tattoo. "You're wasting your time with me. I don't know a thing!"

"Oh, I'm not saying that you do. A nice boy like you wouldn't kill his mother—and maybe his grandmother, too—much as he hated them, would he?"

"Hated them? I didn't hate them!"

"No?" The policeman paused deliberately. "I've heard that you and your grandmother didn't get along very well. Maybe I was mistaken. Was I?"

Richard's gaze faltered. He looked down at the floor. "Grandmother was difficult," he muttered at last, "but I didn't hate her."

"But you quarreled with her, didn't you? You quarreled with her the night before the ball, didn't you?"

Richard swallowed with difficulty. "How—how did you know?" I wondered the same thing. How did Ellis know?

He said: "I hear things. You can't keep many secrets in a big house like this. What was this quarrel about, son?"

"Why"—the boy dug his fingernails deep into the palms of his hands—"why, it wasn't anything serious. Grandmother and I—sometimes we rubbed one another the wrong way."

"It wouldn't have been about money, would it?" the chief suggested helpfully.

"Of course not!"

"You weren't in debt, were you, and trying to borrow a large sum of money from your grandmother?"

"That—that's ridiculous!" Richard seemed to force the words from his throat. "Grandmother didn't believe in lending money to anyone."

"So the only way you could get the money you needed was to kill her?" Chief Ellis spoke so softly that at first the boy failed to grasp his meaning.

"I—" he began, and stopped dead. His face was the color of dried putty. Beads of moisture formed on his forehead. "Grandmother died of a heart attack!"

"Maybe," said Ellis. "Maybe."

"What do you mean?" Richard's voice was a whisper.

"Listen, son!" The police officer towered above him, "we have reason to believe that your grandmother was murdered. Oh, don't act so surprised. You've known it all along! And you must admit things look black for you. You had the motive! Better tell me everything and get it over!"

"You shan't railroad me!" Richard leaped to his feet. The fear in his eyes was a living thing, it was consuming him. "Grandmother died of a heart attack! You can't accuse me of murder!"

"Easy, lad." McIntyre stepped forward. "No one is going to railroad you. Mr. Ellis is a bit premature in his accusations. Sit down and get a grip on yourself. You needn't talk unless you feel up to it."

"Keep out of this, please!" ordered Chief Ellis tersely. "I'm conducting this inquiry."

Mac faced him quietly. "If you don't want a suit for false arrest on your hands," he said sharply, "you had better go easy. Third degrees won't work here; you're not handling thugs. As agent for the Witherspoon family I shall challenge you whenever I see fit."

"You can't interfere with justice!" the other said angrily. "I'll handle things MY way."

"I wouldn't do that," Mac said, and I understood why the gangsters and hoodlums of Chicago kept out of his way. There was an undercurrent beneath the calm quiet of his voice that chilled me through and through. I think Ellis sensed something of this, too, for his anger died and he motioned young Richard away. The lad fled from the room.

"What have you done to my brother?" Daphne burst in upon us, and marched militantly toward the chief of police. "How long is this torture of innocent persons to be permitted?" She whirled upon Mac. "I thought it was your job to protect us! You got father to hire you! But I suppose that was one of your tricks. I suppose you are hand in glove with the police!"

"That will do!" commanded McIntyre curtly, and from sheer surprise the girl was silent. "Sit down!"

"Oh!" Daphne, her wits suddenly scattered, obeyed.

"Now, Miss Witherspoon," he continued more gently, "you have me all wrong. I am trying to help and protect you. I did not, however, bargain to shield the guilty. I intend to find the murderer. It will be wise for you and your brother—and your guests—to tell the truth. If you are innocent, you shan't suffer. I'll see to that.

"Another thing," he went on, "I do not want to meddle in your private affairs. I'm not interested in skeletons, if any, which you may have hidden in your clothes. But," he added meaningly, "I am interested in any and all information pertaining to the crime. If you can tell me anything that will aid in clearing up some of the minor mysteries in this case, it is your duty to speak. You follow me, Miss Witherspoon?"

"I—" she stammered and Mac nodded. Daphne followed him, but I, for one, did not.

"Very well," he continued, "I'm going to ask you a question or two. You'll do well to answer truthfully."

"I'll ask the questions," Ellis put in. "You have no authority—"

Mac brushed him aside: "Your turn will come later. Now, Miss Witherspoon?"

"Well?"

"You stated earlier that at the time of your mother's death your brother, Richard, at your special request, went into town on some errands. Correct?"

"Yes."

"What were these errands?"

"He—he bought me some toothpaste at the drug store and some picture post cards at the Kirby hotel."

"Haven't you forgotten something?"

"No-o."

"Didn't he send a telegram for you at the Western Union depot in the hotel?"

"Western Union depot?" echoed Daphne, and her expression altered; it became sly, secretive. She laughed nervously. "Why, yes—I had forgotten. I had Rich send a wire to a friend of mine."

"May I have this friend's name and address?"

"Surely. It is Miss Lorena Stevens, Baxter apartments, East Fifty-seventh street, New York City."

"Thank you."

"I—I don't see what my telegram has to do with—with the murder!" Again her nervous laughter rippled through the room. "My mother was dead long before Rich reached the hotel!"

"True," agreed Mac. "Your mother was dead, and your grandmother also."

"Oh!" She closed her eyes and sort of swayed back and forth in her chair. I felt terribly sorry for her without knowing why. "Why do you say that?" she demanded hoarsely. "Why?"

"Don't you know?" queried Mac. There was a second's stillness; then the girl smiled slightly as she half-whispered:

"You aren't even warm, Mr. Detective, not even warm!"

"What is all this?" Ellis exclaimed, irritably.

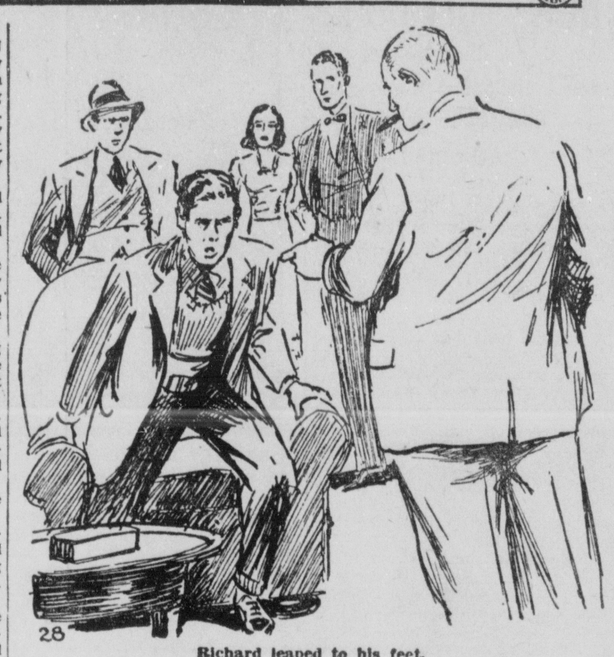

"Perhaps Mr. McIntyre will explain," Daphne replied, and arose and walked swiftly from the room.

"Holding out on us?" demanded Phil. "What's up?"

"Time enough for that later," Mac told him. "Better get on with it, chief."

"O. K." Mac shrugged.

World At A Glance

—By—
Charles P. Stewart

With congress up to its ears in consideration of the biggest military program in the country's peace-time history, several of Capitol Hill's best authorities on the subject are urging the formation of a joint committee of senators and representatives to determine just what are Uncle Sam's army, naval and aviation needs—and to deal with the whole thing as a single issue.

It isn't a bad idea.

At the present there are four congressional committees wrestling with questions relating to our potential fighting strength: Chairmen Morris Sheppard's and Andrew J. May's army groups, respectively of the upper and lower legislative chambers; Chairmen David I. Walsh's and Carl Vinson's navy aggregations, likewise respectively senatorial and representatorial. These committees do not cooperate worth a cent. That is to say, perhaps there is a certain community of interest between the two army set-ups on one side, and the two navy crowds on the other side, but there is not a bit of it between the army and the navy men. They are at least mutually indifferent and maybe a trifle jealous of one another.

As for aviation, it is an orphan. True, the army wants plenty of flyers and so does the navy, but there's no thought of coordination between them. Most of the rest of the world's major powers have independent aviation ministries. Our aviation branch is all split up—not only between the army and navy, but the Commerce department horns in on it also. The Commerce folks' concern, indeed, is with civil rather than military airmanship, but the two are mixed together, just as our war fleet is largely dependent upon an up-to-date merchant marine.

OUR NATIONAL DEFENSE

Now, naturally our national defense's efficiency depends greatly upon inter-departmental and inter-service union.

It is not altogether a matter of efficiency, either. It likewise is a matter of economy. We are talking today in terms of billions for defensive purposes. It pays us to save here and there, if we can, a few hundreds of millions by planning cohesively.

Incidentally there is considerable congressional opposition to the administration's preparedness scheme. Even pacifistic legislators are favorable to adequately defensive appropriations, but there is a deal of objection to anything like running wild militarily. And that is what the White House is suspected of. It would be to the President's own advantage to start an impartial-sounding legislative investigation to prove his case — as far as possible.

I am convinced that the average American does not deem armament-building a nice way of MAKING work. He prefers even boondoggling to any war preparations beyond absolute necessity.

* * *

TOO MANY DEPARTMENTS?

From the standpoint of pure efficiency, a consolidation of departments might be a bright notion.

The United States started off with a War Department—including the navy. Well, why not? If we have a war, the navy's a part of it. They were split in two a considerable number of years later. It was a mistake, I think.

The War Department was the main thing originally—I mean the army department.

As of the date the Navy Department tail wags the War Department dog—of war.

Overseas fighting is all we have to reckon with—except, possibly, over-air fighting.

While we are reorganizing and thus (supposedly) improving the government, what's the matter with reunionizing army and navy into a national "Defense Department"? And scooping in aviation?

We say we're trying to simplify government.

D. A. R. Lists Delegates To Annual Convention

Jackson Home Opened For Meeting

Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. C. C. Watts, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger and Mrs. Helen Black Anderson were elected delegates to the state convention of Daughters of the American Revolution at the meeting of Pickaway Plains Chapter, Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. H. D. Jackson, N. Scioto street. The state conference will be the week of March 13 at Toledo. The National convention will be in Washington D. C. in April. Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Terwilliger were also elected delegates to this meeting.

Forty-two members answered roll call and two guests were present for the session.

Mrs. Briggs, chapter regent, was in the chair, the meeting being opened by group singing of "America" led by Mrs. James Moffitt, music chairman. The regular flag ritual was observed, followed by the reading of the prayer service by Mrs. Charles Gerhardt, chaplain.

In addition to the delegates to the conventions, alternates were elected during the business hour. For the state meet the alternates are Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. George Roth, Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker and Mrs. Jackson. Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Hunsicker were named alternates to the Washington convention.

An interesting and well-prepared paper on "Old Jewelry" was presented by Mrs. Lee Shaner, who said in part: "Jewelry, even among Barbaric nations, has been generally used and worn, and the same articles have been repeated again and again: throughout the ages the materials employed have been the same, the chief difference between ancient and modern art lies in the craftsmanship and the tools the workers used.

"The two-fold purpose of the safety of possession, which signified wealth, and the cultivation and admiration of art, may be taken to have been the primary objects which inspired the workers in metals and the wearers of the first jewelry.

"The brooch became the most necessary article, one which rich and poor, young and old, male and female, all required. The Scotch jewelers made many wonderful brooches with which to fasten their plaides. In modern days the brooch has been worn according to changes in fashion by ladies, but it was one much favored by English men as it always has been by Scotch lairds. The different typed brooches from various districts are sufficiently marked so that they can be classified as the ornaments of distinct peoples, and of different periods. The Romans called the brooch 'fibula', and used it to fasten the tunic. Early writers mention that fibulae were used to fasten the veils of the Vestal Virgins.

"The beautiful diamond in your ring is undoubtedly the oldest thing on which your eyes will ever rest. The diamond is one of the best investments from the standpoint of stability, and continuing to rise in value. The world's total supply is limited, only a few important bearing fields have been discovered.

"The pearl is the gem that added to the splendor of the court of the American Mound Builders, and stood alike for the pomp and grandeur of Rome. In this age it is the most prized of the precious stones. Pearl divers are combing the bottoms of the seas to satisfy the demand.

"The Metropolitan Opera House in New York City has the distinction of being the place where the greatest value in pearls may be seen at a single occasion. It is possible that $50,000,000 worth of pearls have been worn by the patrons of the opera at a single performance. While size is important, yet in building up a necklace the main difficulty is in matching the gems as to color and iridescence.

"The primary use of the finger ring was its use as a convenient method of carrying the engraved stone which was to serve as a signet. Finger rings, more than any other species of medieval jewelry, were designed to act as talismen, amulets and charms. Rings have decorated the legs, ears, fingers, toes and noses of people down through the ages."

Mrs. Shaner spoke in detail of the different types of work such as enameling, hair work, cameo, engraved stones, intaglios and many others.

An exhibit of old pieces of jewelry was held and 78 pieces were brought forth from tissue wrappings to add to the evening's interest.

Mrs. Charles H. May, chairman of approved schools, spoke in behalf of the work which the National D. A. R. has mapped out for this year along that line. The Tamassee school in South Carolina and the Kate Duncan Smith school in Alabama, are entirely financed by D. A. R. club women of the United States, she said. These schools are open to mountain children of limited privileges. The D. A. R. chapters through Ohio gave nearly $5,000 in money last year in addition to the usual donations of bedding, clothing and household equipment. Only a few states surpassed Ohio in donating for this fine work.

During the social hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. George Foresman, Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. G. L. Schiear, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, Miss Eliza Plum and Miss Gretchen Plum.

Mrs. C. F. Bowman of N. Pickaway street, has transferred her membership in the John Holmes Chapter, D. A. R., Minneapolis, Minn., to the Pickaway Plains chapter, Circleville.

During the business hour, Mrs. Don Walker was received as a new member. Plans were discussed for the play, "Cinderella", which the club will sponsor March 22, at the high school building. It will be presented by the Clare Tree Major Children's theatre.

After the business, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Ned Groom, program chairman, who presented Mrs. Emmett Crist. Mrs. Crist read the poem, "On Being Behind with One's Reading."

Mrs. Franklin Price spoke on "Child's Approach to Religion". She said that religion is a very important part of a child's training, and should begin early. She continued with the thought that a child should not be taught formal prayer but rather should acquire his basic religious training through love in the home group. Children accept religion as told to them, about as they do the story of Santa Claus. She finished with the statement that trained in religion when young, they will not depart from it.

A round table discussion followed the reading of the paper.

D. A. R. Lists Delegates To Annual Convention

Jackson Home Opened For Meeting

Mrs. Bryce Briggs, Mrs. C. C. Watts, Mrs. Meeker Terwilliger and Mrs. Helen Black Anderson were elected delegates to the state convention of Daughters of the American Revolution at the meeting of Pickaway Plains Chapter, Tuesday evening, at the home of Mrs. H. D. Jackson, N. Scioto street. The state conference will be the week of March 13 at Toledo. The National convention will be in Washington D. C. in April. Mrs. Briggs and Mrs. Terwilliger were also elected delegates to this meeting.

Forty-two members answered roll call and two guests were present for the session.

Mrs. Briggs, chapter regent, was in the chair, the meeting being opened by group singing of "America" led by Mrs. James Moffitt, music chairman. The regular flag ritual was observed, followed by the reading of the prayer service by Mrs. Charles Gerhardt, chaplain.

In addition to the delegates to the conventions, alternates were elected during the business hour. For the state meet the alternates are Mrs. C. K. Hunsicker, Mrs. Harry McGhee, Mrs. George Roth, Mrs. G. P. Hunsicker and Mrs. Jackson. Mrs. Anderson and Mrs. Hunsicker were named alternates to the Washington convention.

An interesting and well-prepared paper on "Old Jewelry" was presented by Mrs. Lee Shaner, who said in part: "Jewelry, even among Barbaric nations, has been generally used and worn, and the same articles have been repeated again and again: throughout the ages the materials employed have been the same, the chief difference between ancient and modern art lies in the craftsmanship and the tools the workers used.

"The two-fold purpose of the safety of possession, which signified wealth, and the cultivation and admiration of art, may be taken to have been the primary objects which inspired the workers in metals and the wearers of the first jewelry.

"The brooch became the most necessary article, one which rich and poor, young and old, male and female, all required. The Scotch jewelers made many wonderful brooches with which to fasten their plaides. In modern days the brooch has been worn according to changes in fashion by ladies, but it was one much favored by English men as it always has been by Scotch lairds. The different typed brooches from various districts are sufficiently marked so that they can be classified as the ornaments of distinct peoples, and of different periods. The Romans called the brooch 'fibula', and used it to fasten the tunic. Early writers mention that fibulae were used to fasten the veils of the Vestal Virgins.

"The beautiful diamond in your ring is undoubtedly the oldest thing on which your eyes will ever rest. The diamond is one of the best investments from the standpoint of stability, and continuing to rise in value. The world's total supply is limited, only a few important bearing fields have been discovered.

"The pearl is the gem that added to the splendor of the court of the American Mound Builders, and stood alike for the pomp and grandeur of Rome. In this age it is the most prized of the precious stones. Pearl divers are combing the bottoms of the seas to satisfy the demand.

"The Metropolitan Opera House in New York City has the distinction of being the place where the greatest value in pearls may be seen at a single occasion. It is possible that $50,000,000 worth of pearls have been worn by the patrons of the opera at a single performance. While size is important, yet in building up a necklace the main difficulty is in matching the gems as to color and iridescence.

"The primary use of the finger ring was its use as a convenient method of carrying the engraved stone which was to serve as a signet. Finger rings, more than any other species of medieval jewelry, were designed to act as talismen, amulets and charms. Rings have decorated the legs, ears, fingers, toes and noses of people down through the ages."

Mrs. Shaner spoke in detail of the different types of work such as enameling, hair work, cameo, engraved stones, intaglios and many others.

An exhibit of old pieces of jewelry was held and 78 pieces were brought forth from tissue wrappings to add to the evening's interest.

Mrs. Charles H. May, chairman of approved schools, spoke in behalf of the work which the National D. A. R. has mapped out for this year along that line. The Tamassee school in South Carolina and the Kate Duncan Smith school in Alabama, are entirely financed by D. A. R. club women of the United States, she said. These schools are open to mountain children of limited privileges. The D. A. R. chapters through Ohio gave nearly $5,000 in money last year in addition to the usual donations of bedding, clothing and household equipment. Only a few states surpassed Ohio in donating for this fine work.

During the social hour, refreshments were served by Mrs. George Foresman, Mrs. Frank Bennett, Mrs. Martin Cromley, Mrs. G. L. Schiear, Mrs. W. Emerson Downing, Miss Eliza Plum and Miss Gretchen Plum.

Mrs. C. F. Bowman of N. Pickaway street, has transferred her membership in the John Holmes Chapter, D. A. R., Minneapolis, Minn., to the Pickaway Plains chapter, Circleville.

After the business, the meeting was turned over to Mrs. Ned Groom, program chairman, who presented Mrs. Emmett Crist. Mrs. Crist read the poem, "On Being Behind with One's Reading."

Mrs. Franklin Price spoke on "Child's Approach to Religion". She said that religion is a very important part of a child's training, and should begin early. She continued with the thought that a child should not be taught formal prayer but rather should acquire his basic religious training through love in the home group. Children accept religion as told to them, about as they do the story of Santa Claus. She finished with the statement that trained in religion when young, they will not depart from it.

A round table discussion followed the reading of the paper.

ADAMS CLAIMS SLASH IN W. P. A. TO CUT 600,000

President Declares Over Million Will Lose Jobs Under Proposed Bill

continued its work on the W.P.A. emergency appropriation behind closed doors, administration leaders in the senate reiterated their belief the senate would not yield to the President's recommendation.

The subcommittee hoped to complete its hearings today and begin marking the house bill for amendments. Indications were the bill would be taken up on the floor of the senate Monday.

Members of the subcommittee indicated they were investigating reports President Roosevelt has available some $30,000,000 in unexpended balances which he may transfer to the W.P.A. should its current funds be expended before congress finally passes the bill. W. P. A. officials have said they expect to be out of money by February 7.

While Adams did not comment directly on the President's press conference statement that 50 major cities were unable to raise any more money for local relief, he disclosed he had suggested to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, of New York, that he have the legal debt limit for that city increased. LaGuardia appeared before the committee yesterday.

BILL TO CONTROL COAL PURCHASE GOES TO HOPPER

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—Backing up Governor Bricker's request that the legislature enact a law requiring tax-supported institutions to burn Ohio mined coal, a bill was in the senate hopper today requiring the receiving of bids on Ohio coal by the state purchasing agent or boards of trustees.

Introduced by Sen. Ray Palmer (R-Barnesville) it requires that where bituminous coal is purchased on specifications, they shall not be such as to exclude coal mined in the state.

It also provides that coal must not be delivered to tax-supported institutions from other states unless the delivered price is not more than 20 percent less than the lowest bid received on Ohio produced coal.

Should the purchasing agent believe that equipment in an institution would not handle bituminous coal the bill requires that he notify the chief mine inspector, the latter to make an investigation. Affidavits would have to be produced showing the source of coal. A fine not to exceed $500 would be levied against persons violating the terms of the proposed act.

majority in the house to pass.

The bill would set up machinery for the administering of relief needs until June 30, 1939. However, McGregor pointed out that it is based on the recommendations of the administration for a long-range poor relief program over a two-year period.

This would indicate that the administration intends to recommend passage of a biennium bill calling for the appropriation of an additional $15,000,000 to the emergency board to finance relief until Dec. 31, 1940.

Stop gap relief legislation had a supporter in Rep. Lody Huml (D-Cuyahoga) who introduced a bill to appropriate $2,000,000 for allocation by the control board on the basis of comparative need.

Bills Totaled 90

The house got down to real work yesterday, introducing 64 bills and running the total for the session to 90. Nine bills were sent to the hopper in the senate.

Several resolutions reached the floor of the house, chief of which was one by Rep. William H. Whetro (D-Lawrence) requesting congress to lower old age pension requirements from 65 to 60 years and increase maximum pensions from $30 to $40 on a federal aid contribution basis.

A fine of $1,000 and imprisonment of six months for state officers purchasing state supplies through a broker or "middleman" would be imposed under a bill introduced by Rep. Paul H. Ballard (R-Jackson.) The bill also sets up a similar penalty (for brokers, firms or corporations who negotiate with any state official.

The measure would empower the attorney general to enforce its provisions and to call a grand jury session to investigate any violations. The bill supplements the anti-graft amendment inserted by the senate in the partial appropriations bill passed last week by the legislature.

ADAMS CLAIMS SLASH IN W. P. A. TO CUT 600,000

President Declares Over Million Will Lose Jobs Under Proposed Bill

continued its work on the W.P.A. emergency appropriation behind closed doors, administration leaders in the senate reiterated their belief the senate would not yield to the President's recommendation.

The subcommittee hoped to complete its hearings today and begin marking the house bill for amendments. Indications were the bill would be taken up on the floor of the senate Monday.

Members of the subcommittee indicated they were investigating reports President Roosevelt has available some $30,000,000 in unexpended balances which he may transfer to the W.P.A. should its current funds be expended before congress finally passes the bill. W. P. A. officials have said they expect to be out of money by February 7.

While Adams did not comment directly on the President's press conference statement that 50 major cities were unable to raise any more money for local relief, he disclosed he had suggested to Mayor F. H. LaGuardia, of New York, that he have the legal debt limit for that city increased. LaGuardia appeared before the committee yesterday.

After the program an informal meeting for discussion of scouting in the district was conducted by Mr. Heistand.

There are eight organizations in the district sponsoring Scout troops. They are the Circleville M. TIGERS TURN ON SPEED TO OVERCOME STRONG McARTHUR QUINTET

RED AND BLACK WINS 31 TO 25 COURT CONTEST

Invaders Lead Until Midway In Third Period, Smith's Basket Turning Tide

RESERVES ON TOP, 31 TO 7

Four Youngsters Expelled In Hard-Fought Scrap; Clarksburg Next

Circleville high Tigers were on the prowl Tuesday evening and a better than average McArthur varsity fell before a driving offensive that netted 31 points against the 25 that the invaders were able to total. The game was a bruiser from start to finish. Four boys were expelled for four personal fouls each.

The Tiger quintet, victor over Waverly last Friday after a poor start, will drill the remainder of the week for the invasion of Bob Terhune's fast Clarksburg outfit, that team coming to Circleville for a Saturday night attraction. Coach Terhune and his varsity five witnessed the McArthur contest Tuesday evening.

The game started fast with Bumgarner caging an action shot to put the Red and Black ahead, but McArthur tied it up and kept it that way, the period ending 4-all. In the second canto, an under-the-basket play that had the Tiger deep defense puzzled put McArthur out in front, the team ringing up a 13-10 lead at halftime.

Halftime Rest Helps

During the halftime rest period Coach Roy Black spurred his charges into a better effort and the team went out to tie up the ball game and take the lead. With the score 14-13 in favor of McArthur, Harold Smith pegged a bucket that put the Tigers in the lead 15-14 and from that point on the invaders never caught up. A moment later Smith retired on four personals, the first boy to go to the showers during the joust.

Whitey Davis started to hit and before the period was ended the Red and Black was leading 20-14.

McArthur's team put on a never-say-die finish to keep the Tigers on their toes all during the last period. The invaders pulled up within three points two or three times, but just couldn't spread out enought to gain a deadlock. A pretty shot from the side by Bob Bowsher, deep in the final period put the Tigers in the van by five points and that lead stuck.

McArthur Loses Three

Three of McArthur's first stringers, Burson, who held Whitey Davis to a free throw in the first half; George, center, and Sprague, clever guard, took the long walk to the dressing room.

Fourteen personals were called on each team.

Davis with four buckets and three free tosses led the scorers, but Bumgarner, Walters, Bowsher and Smith, all of whom started, did well, as did the substitutes.

The Tiger reserve squad took the McArthur outfit into camp by a 31-7 score. The Red and Black ran up 15 points to zero in the first period. Coach Roy Black used three full quintets, substituting five boys at a time. The first string reserves played the first and fourth periods, the second reserves the second and a freshman team the third period.

The McArthur team was late in reaching Circleville, the first game not starting until 45 minutes after it was scheduled.

GALENTO READY FOR NEWARK GO WITH HUGE FOE

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 18 — Avowed by in perfect condition and down to a perfect 235 pounds, two-ton Tony Galento, the National Boxing Association's No. 1 challenger for the world heavyweight championship, was ready today for his attempt to defeat Jorge Brescia, of the Argentina, tomorrow night, and move a step nearer to an eventual crack at Joe Louis.

The fat and short Jersey tavern-keeper concluded one of his most strenuous pre-fight conditioning campaigns yesterday and reiterated his hope of knocking Brescia out within two or three rounds.

The latter likewise wound up his training and exepected to enter the ring at his usual 210, or thereabouts. While he will give away much the best of it in weight, Brescia will have a distinct advantage in height and reach.

Against Galento's five feet, nine inches, Brescia stands six feet, two, and the former's reach is 72 inches compared with 82 inches.

Nevertheless, because of his punch, Galento has been established as a one-sided favorite and a crowd of more than 10,000 is expected.

Ashville's Broncos took time out from doing their county league chores, Tuesday evening, to turn back the fast Lancaster St. Mary team on the Fairfield county court. The score was 27-21, Ashville leading after the first three minutes.

Junior Gregg and Wimpy Walden teamed up to make things miserable for the Irish, the former getting 10 points and the latter 11.

Ashville led at the half 12 to 9, overcoming a 3-0 lead in the first two minutes.

Abbott long-shooting guard, was Lancaster's best bet.

PATTY BERG ON WAY TO VICTORY IN FIRST START

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 18—Patty Berg of Minneapolis, 19 year old national women's golf champion, was well on her way today to victory in her first start of the 1939 campaign.

She was four strokes in front at the half-way mark in the 72-hole Augusta women's golf tournament.

Duplicating her three over par 78 in the first round she finished the first 36 holes with 156 to stretch her lead over Miss Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky. who posted 160.

With the freckle-faced Patty firing a steady game that included four birdies, Miss Miley was no match for her rival despite remarkable accuracy around the greens.

Tied for third place at 162 were Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C. and Mrs. Whitney Harb, the former Helen Hicks. Miss Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, Ga. followed with 163.

Other low scorers included Laddie Erwin of New Jersey, 169; Mrs. Opal Hill, Kansas City, 177; Mrs. Myron Davy of Pinehurst, N. C., 183 and Lillian Watson of Scotland, 184.

Bach '5' Tests Purina Quintet

The Bach Insurance team, an in and out aggregation but one that possesses potentialities, stands in the path of the City League leading Purina Feeds tonight as the loop goes into another round on the Circleville Athletic Club court.

The first game, that between the Stevenson furniture store and Glitt grocery, begins at 7:30. The Bach-Purina game is second and third comes the Wallace bakery-Eshelman Feed tilt, with the Caskey Cleaners and Coca Colas winding up the evening with their joust. The latter contest is expected to be the hardest battle of the card, both teams trying to stay in the running for the league lead. A defeat would just about eliminate either of the contestants.

Richard Justus, Eshelman team member, remains on top in the league scoring race with 34 points. He was held to only four markers last week by the Purina team. In second place is Walter Gregg of the Caskeys with 32. Close behind Gregg is Creighton Anderson of Purina, 31, and then come H. Fausnaugh, Glitt's, Kaiser, Caskey's, 26; Woodruff, Bach's, 21; J. Warner, Bach's, 21; M. Justus, Glitt's, 21, and Miller, Coca Cola, nineteen.

Team totals find the Caskey Cleaners on top with 109 counters, Eshelman Feeds second with 101 and then Coca Cola, 94; Glitt's grocery, 91; Bach insurance, 85; Purina Feeds, 75; Wallace bakery, 71, and Stevenson's furniture, 54.

League officials have decided to try the two-official plan, after having used a single one through all games played to date. The C.A.C. court is too big for one man. Byron Eby will continue as referee with Dick Robinson as umpire.

PAR TO ACCEPT SOUND DRUBBING IN FRISCO EVENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18 — With every indication that par is going to get a sound drubbing, 195 of the nation's crack golfers today began the $5,000 San Francisco National match play open.

Starting at 8 a. m. and continuing to dusk, the army of links wizards will essay the first 18 holes of qualifying today, and the final 18 holes tomorrow. Match play starts Friday, with the two survivors battling it out Sunday.

Shadows of things to come were seen yesterday in an East vs. West exhibition which saw par dribbled around as if the tough Lakeside course was a miniature layout.

Leading the parade were Sam Snead, Johnny Revolta and Ed Dudley with three-under-perfect 68's. Thirteen of the 20 competitors broke or equalled par.

The East beat the West three matches to two, with results as follows:

Ben Coltrin and Jim Demaret, West, defeated Jug McSpaden and Byron Nelson, East, one up.

Sam Snead and Jimmy Hines, East, downed Art Bell and Harry Cooper, West, two up.

Johnny Revolta and Willie Coggin, West, beat Ben Hogan and Ted Luther, East, one up.

Ed Dudley and Jimmy Thomson, East, defeated Dick Metz and Lawson Little, West, 2 and 1.

Marvin Stahl and Sam Byrd, East, won from Horton Smith and Dutch Harrison, West, one up.

BUDGE TAKES LEAD

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 18 — Don Budge, star recruit of professional tennis, led his California rival, Ellsworth Vines, six matches to four in the current exhibition tour today. Budge played steady tennis to down the pro net champion, 6-4, 6-3 before a crowd of 4,500 customers last night. Vines played the erratic game that has marked several of his appearances in the series of matches with Budge, and Budge was seldom in trouble.

CINCINNATI FIVE LOSES 36 TO 34 COURT THRILLER

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—The University of Cincinnati basketball team was back home today after suffering a 23-22 defeat at the hands of Marshall college in a game which would satisfy any exponent of "body contact" and which left 3,000 fans limp.

Marshall led at the half 13-8, but the red-clad warriors from Cincinnati took command of the game after that and it was only in the last 15 seconds that the Big Green emerged on top.

Youngstown had its hands full with another West Virginia team but came out on top, 36-34, over West Liberty State teachers. Muskingum banged out an easy 52-37 victory over Oberlin while Xavier had nearly as easy a time with St. Joseph. The Musketeers' margin of victory was 45-33.

Wooster had little trouble subduing Mt. Union, 34-23, but the affair between Ohio Northern and Denison was another body contact fracas which kept fans standing up in their seats most of the way. Ohio Northern finally slipped into the lead and held it until the game ended 38-36.

Modern Vs. Ancient Art

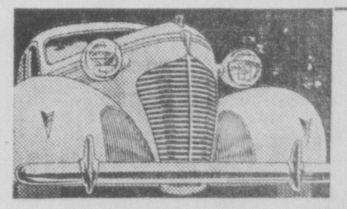

PARIS, — They'll be some fireworks in Paris pretty soon on the question of modern art and ancient art. Workmen are just completing the installation of 12 new stained-glass windows (done by modern artists) in the famed Cathedral of Notre Dame. The new windows will be compared with the older stained windows, done by ancient artists. The modern windows did not replace other stained glass but plain windows.

Phelan Urges Fights To Aid War on Paralysis

By PAT ROBINSON

NEW YORK, Jan. 18—Along Broadway today we find . . . General John Phelan . . . head of New York Boxing commission . . . who is calling on every promoter in the state to stage a fight . . . for President Roosevelt's infantile paralysis fund. . . .

General expects hundred percent response . . . citing the fact that boxing tops all sports in charity contributions . . . and Mike Jacobs points out his fights have contributed $400,000 to charity . . . in the last four years . . .

Joe Louis has had a hand in some of the biggest charity gates . . . Louis-Carnera battle contributed $53,000 . . . Louis-Baer $80,000 . . . Louis-Schmeling $46,000 . . . and Louis-Paolino $26,000 . . .

Fighters are always willing to do their bit for a good cause . . . Tiger Jack Fox today offered to fight Tony Galento, Bob Pastor and Maurice Strickland . . . and said he's contributed his end to the paralysis victims.

Ed Barrow . . . Yanks business manager for many years . . . grinning broadly . . . over his election to the presidency of the club . . .

Scoopee . . . in the Winchell manner . . . Larry White . . . manager of Fred Apostoli and Eddie Booker . . . has just discovered the latter has been married . . . to a San Jose girl . . . for four months . . . the coast welter says he was afraid to tell about it . . . because he read somewhere that newlyweds are not so good in the ring . . . and he was scared White might lay him off for a year . . .

What's all this we hear about a split between Penn State and Syracuse . . . because of friction engendered at boxing meets and basketball games? . . .

$7,500 To Escobar

Detroit's offering Sixto Escobar $7,500 . . . to defend his bantam title . . . against Kayo Morgan . . . Escobar's willing but wants the fight held in his native Puerto Rico . . .

Fight mob wants Col. John Kilpatrick . . . head of Madison Square garden . . . to contribute a night's funds from Sonja Henie's ice show . . . to the infantile paralysis fund . . .

Joe Louis now 5 to 1 to trim John Henry Lewis . . . John Henry and his camp followers all nibbling at those odds . . . never saw anyone so confident against Louis . . .

Says John henry . . . Joe's been on the shelf a long time while I'm razor sharp . . . I'll outpoint him sure . . . you know anyone could have made a fortune taking shortenders in the last ten years . . ."

True enough . . . Baer was 8 to 1 over Braddock . . . Louis 6 to 1 over Schmeling in their first fight . . . Farr was 9 to 5 over Nova . . . Steele 3 to 1 over Apostoli . . . and Apostoli 5 to 2 over Conn . . . and Farr 13 to 5 over Burman . . . to cite only a few . . . and all the shortenders won . . .

Horace (Giants) Stoneham upset over word from Mel Ott . . . that the little slugger had suffered a broken finger . . . "wish my ball players would keep their fingers out of doorways," moans Horace . . .

Jim Crowley . . . of Four Horsemen fame . . . just back from that dear Paris . . . and quite willing to let the Frenchmen keep it . . . "we played some football games for them," explains Jim, "and when we got through they knew as much about football as I do about French . . . and my limit is oui-out."

Mike Jacobs is going to import Johnny Paycheck . . . Des Moines heavyweight . . . who's been laying the customers in the aisles and his opponents on the floor . . . for a garden unveiling . . .

And five-times loser Tommy Farr . . . is Hot Springs bound . . . but it will take more than a hot bath to make him win a fight . . . selah . . .

GALENTO READY FOR NEWARK GO WITH HUGE FOE

NEWARK, N. J., Jan. 18 — Avowed by in perfect condition and down to a perfect 235 pounds, two-ton Tony Galento, the National Boxing Association's No. 1 challenger for the world heavyweight championship, was ready today for his attempt to defeat Jorge Brescia, of the Argentina, tomorrow night, and move a step nearer to an eventual crack at Joe Louis.

The fat and short Jersey tavernkeeper concluded one of his most strenuous pre-fight conditioning campaigns yesterday and reiterated his hope of knocking Brescia out within two or three rounds.

The latter likewise wound up his training and exepected to enter the ring at his usual 210, or thereabouts. While he will give away much the best of it in weight, Brescia will have a distinct advantage in height and reach.

Against Galento's five feet, nine inches, Brescia stands six feet, two, and the former's reach is 72 inches compared with 82 inches.

Nevertheless, because of his punch, Galento has been established as a one-sided favorite and a crowd of more than 10,000 is expected.

Early Lead Overcome By Speedy Broncos; Gregg And Walden Hot

Ashville's Broncos took time out from doing their county league chores, Tuesday evening, to turn back the fast Lancaster St. Mary team on the Fairfield county court. The score was 27-21, Ashville leading after the first three minutes.

Junior Gregg and Wimpy Walden teamed up to make things miserable for the Irish, the former getting 10 points and the latter 11.

PATTY BERG ON WAY TO VICTORY IN FIRST START

AUGUSTA, Ga., Jan. 18—Patty Berg of Minneapolis, 19 year old national women's golf champion, was well on her way today to victory in her first start of the 1939 campaign.

She was four strokes in front at the half-way mark in the 72-hole Augusta women's golf tournament.

Duplicating her three over par 78 in the first round she finished the first 36 holes with 156 to stretch her lead over Miss Marion Miley, of Lexington, Ky. who posted 160.

With the freckle-faced Patty firing a steady game that included four birdies, Miss Miley was no match for her rival despite remarkable accuracy around the greens.

Tied for third place at 162 were Kathryn Hemphill of Columbia, S. C. and Mrs. Whitney Harb, the former Helen Hicks. Miss Dorothy Kirby, Atlanta, Ga. followed with 163.

Other low scorers included Laddie Erwin of New Jersey, 169; Mrs. Opal Hill, Kansas City, 177; Mrs. Myron Davy of Pinehurst, N. C., 183 and Lillian Watson of Scotland, 184.

Bach '5' Tests Purina Quintet

The Bach Insurance team, an in and out aggregation but one that possesses potentialities, stands in the path of the City League leading Purina Feeds tonight as the loop goes into another round on the Circleville Athletic Club court.

The first game, that between the Stevenson furniture store and Glitt grocery, begins at 7:30. The Bach-Purina game is second and third comes the Wallace bakery-Eshelman Feed tilt, with the Caskey Cleaners and Coca Colas winding up the evening with their joust. The latter contest is expected to be the hardest battle of the card, both teams trying to stay in the running for the league lead. A defeat would just about eliminate either of the contestants.

Richard Justus, Eshelman team member, remains on top in the league scoring race with 34 points. He was held to only four markers last week by the Purina team. In second place is Walter Gregg of the Caskeys with 32. Close behind Gregg is Creighton Anderson of Purina, 31, and then come H. Fausnaugh, Glitt's, Kaiser, Caskey's, 26; Woodruff, Bach's, 21; J. Warner, Bach's, 21; M. Justus, Glitt's, 21, and Miller, Coca Cola, nineteen.

Team totals find the Caskey Cleaners on top with 109 counters, Eshelman Feeds second with 101 and then Coca Cola, 94; Glitt's grocery, 91; Bach insurance, 85; Purina Feeds, 75; Wallace bakery, 71, and Stevenson's furniture, 54.

League officials have decided to try the two-official plan, after having used a single one through all games played to date. The C.A.C. court is too big for one man. Byron Eby will continue as referee with Dick Robinson as umpire.

NEW SURGICAL MASK

CHICAGO, Jan. 18—Medical science took another step forward in its war on germs today following announcement of a new-type surgical face mask abolishing the last source of infection.

PAR TO ACCEPT SOUND DRUBBING IN FRISCO EVENT

SAN FRANCISCO, Jan. 18 — With every indication that par is going to get a sound drubbing, 195 of the nation's crack golfers today began the $5,000 San Francisco National match play open.

Starting at 8 a. m. and continuing to dusk, the army of links wizards will essay the first 18 holes of qualifying today, and the final 18 holes tomorrow. Match play starts Friday, with the two survivors battling it out Sunday.

Shadows of things to come were seen yesterday in an East vs. West exhibition which saw par dribbled around as if the tough Lakeside course was a miniature layout.

Leading the parade were Sam Snead, Johnny Revolta and Ed Dudley with three-under-perfect 68's. Thirteen of the 20 competitors broke or equalled par.

The East beat the West three matches to two, with results as follows:

Ben Coltrin and Jim Demaret, West, defeated Jug McSpaden and Byron Nelson, East, one up.

Sam Snead and Jimmy Hines, East, downed Art Bell and Harry Cooper, West, two up.

Johnny Revolta and Willie Coggin, West, beat Ben Hogan and Ted Luther, East, one up.

Ed Dudley and Jimmy Thomson, East, defeated Dick Metz and Lawson Little, West, 2 and 1.

Marvin Stahl and Sam Byrd, East, won from Horton Smith and Dutch Harrison, West, one up.

BUDGE TAKES LEAD

ST. LOUIS, Mo., Jan. 18 — Don Budge, star recruit of professional tennis, led his California rival, Ellsworth Vines, six matches to four in the current exhibition tour today. Budge played steady tennis to down the pro net champion, 6-4, 6-3 before a crowd of 4,500 customers last night. Vines played the erratic game that has marked several of his appearances in the series of matches with Budge, and Budge was seldom in trouble.

24 CUBS HOPEFUL

CHICAGO, Jan. 18—Twenty-four members of the Chicago Cubs team approached their mail boxes with their fingers crossed today. Contracts to the twenty-two players unsigned and two coaches were posted yesterday by the management. Some called for raises, some for cuts and some for "as was" in the line of salaries.

CINCINNATI FIVE LOSES 36 TO 34 COURT THRILLER

COLUMBUS, Jan. 18—The University of Cincinnati basketball team was back home today after suffering a 23-22 defeat at the hands of Marshall college in a game which would satisfy any exponent of "body contact" and which left 3,000 fans limp.

Marshall led at the half 13-8, but the red-clad warriors from Cincinnati took command of the game after that and it was only in the last 15 seconds that the Big Green emerged on top.

Youngstown had its hands full with another West Virginia team but came out on top, 36-34, over West Liberty State teachers. Muskingum banged out an easy 52-37 victory over Oberlin while Xavier had nearly as easy a time with St. Joseph. The Musketeers' margin of victory was 45-33.

Wooster had little trouble subduing Mt. Union, 34-23, but the affair between Ohio Northern and Denison was another body contact fracas which kept fans standing up in their seats most of the way. Ohio Northern finally slipped into the lead and held it until the game ended 38-36.

Modern Vs. Ancient Art

PARIS, — They'll be some fireworks in Paris pretty soon on the question of modern art and ancient art. Workmen are just completing the installation of 12 new stained-glass windows (done by modern artists) in the famed Cathedral of Notre Dame. The new windows will be compared with the older stained windows, done by ancient artists. The modern windows did not replace other stained glass but plain windows.

PETTENGILL

"The Gentleman from Indiana"

TERMITES IN THE TEMPLE

Dear Congressman:

I saw you down at the plant the day the new model came off the line. I don't want to bother you, but I'd like to know what you really think about a workers' government. You've been down there and heard both sides. What's your idea? Do you think the workers would be better off if there weren't anyone but workers running the show? It's got me puzzled.

Yours,
BILL STONE

* * * * * * *

Dear Bill:

I'm going to give it to you straight. I know that's what you want. I suppose you have been listening to some one arguing that Communism is better than our own constitutional democracy and what we call the free enterprise system.

PETTENGILL

Bill, I've never been one to sneer at those who sincerely want a better world. I think there have been plenty of things wrong with our system. I think there should be a constant effort to correct these things that are wrong—and especially by those who believe in our system. It's their business especially.

But there are always a lot of fake humanitarians who promote unrest in order to feather their own nests—the professional payroller, the political contractor urging wholly unnecessary hospitals for war veterans and crippled children, which they will build with your money—you pay taxes, Bill, not less than 20 percent of whatever you make. Then there are all sorts of camp followers,—a scummy crew,—grafters, double crossers, sob-sisters, low-voltage busybodies, and at the top you will always find the power-mad Caesars feeding their egoes with every fine and decent aspiration which has lifted men from the jungle.

This is where so many sincere folks go wrong. They think every one who joins their banner has the same honorable hopes of a better world that they have. They are harmless as doves, but not wise as serpents. And the Good Book tells us we have to be both. They cannot believe these termites will enter their temple.

Bill, I think a workers' government, a one-class government,—is less capable of dealing with these thieves and grafters than the kind of government we have, where all classes are represented in government, and all balance off each other, and watch each other. You have a balance of power and that is very important—for everybody.

The very fact that it is a one-class government tells you that the other classes are unrepresented, and therefore helpless. It is a government without watchdogs, a river without banks. Besides that, six thousand years of history tell an unbroken story. It is that power when it is supreme, is almost always abused and always in danger of abuse. Not more than three or four really good dictators have appeared in sixty centuries. Men succumb to drink. They succumb to power. It is the most intoxicating of all wines.

It makes men ruthless. It acknowledges no standards, no limit to its exercise. Hitler, a Fascist, and Stalin, a Communist, are cut from the same cloth — power drunk.

Our fathers had read history. They knew that supreme power could be trusted to no one. So they forbade it even to good men. Bill, you don't have to rely on a salesman's catalogue, pink or red, white and blue. There is a working model of a workers' government right next door—Mexico. How does it work? I quote from a recent issue of a Mexican paper, Ultimas Noticias:

"There is complete anarchy in the Government Print Shop . . . The Director . . . receives 1400 pesos a month . . . the most efficient worker 2 pesos per day. This explains why school books cost only 7 cents a copy, and to this end it is the workers, not the high officials, who are sacrificed . . . It is to be regrettea that the Government Print Shop, with its magnificent equipment and the almighty protection of the State cannot feed its own workers. In the hands of men of enterprise the establishment would have improved the condition of its workers and its profits would be fantastic. This is very bitter, but we must remove the cobwebs from our eyes in order to see clearly."

So, a workers' government sacrifices the workers, for the "high officials"!! By their fruits ye shall know them.
